Worldwide original equipment approvals for the 20- and 22-inch sizes

- CrossContact LX20 offers good handling characteristics even off-road
- High level of safety thanks to short braking distances; quiet rolling noise for more driving comfort

Hanover, Germany, June 6, 2024. The US car manufacturer Chevrolet is relying on Continental's original equipment expertise for its 2024 Traverse model. The SUV is fitted from the factory with tires from the CrossContact series. The series has been developed especially for good handling qualities on and off-road. Continental has received worldwide original equipment approval for the CrossContact LX 20 in sizes 20 and 22 inches.

CrossContact LX 20 offers short braking distances and high noise comfort

Sport Utility Vehicles such as the Chevrolet Traverse place high demands on tires. This is why the developers at Continental have designed the CrossContact series. The CrossContact LX 20 has a special tread pattern that ensures low rolling resistance and thus improves overall fuel efficiency. It also offers short braking distances on dry and wet roads. The improved tread wear of the CrossContact LX 20 extends tire life. The uniform sipe arrangement of the tread reduces rolling noise – for a high level of driving comfort.

This tire line is approved in the following sizes for the 2024 version of the Chevrolet Traverse in numerous countries:

CrossContact LX20, 275/45 R22 108 V

CrossContact LX20, 255/55 R20 107 H
