AllSeasonContact 2 receives 'exemplary' rating from German magazine

- Editors test on snow, dry and wet roads
- Efficient all-season solution for all types of vehicles

Hanover, Germany, September 26, 2024.

Balanced performance level with strong performance on snow and ice, short braking distances, good grip, sporty and safe handling on wet roads is the verdict of the tire and test experts of the German car magazine AUTO BILD on the Continental's AllSeasonContact 2 in its latest issue. A total of 37 products from European, Asian and American manufacturers were tested in size 225/50 R 17 for the mid-size class.

For the wet test discipline, aquaplaning and cornering aquaplaning, braking, handling and circling were tested. On dry roads, the editors tested braking, handling and pass-by noise. The wet and dry tests took place on the "Wachauring" in Austria. The snow tests for braking, handling, traction and slalom took the editors to wintry New Zealand.

Continental launched the AllSeasonContact 2 last year. It offers even better handling and shorter braking distance on dry and wet roads than its predecessor. In developing the AllSeasonContact 2, Continental has taken into consideration the needs of vehicles with all types of drive systems. With its performance values, AllSeasonContact 2 is an efficient all-season solution for vehicles of all drive types.
