The registration to EuroPCom 2022 is now open. The 13th edition of the annual European Public Communication Conference takes place fully digitally in the morning on Friday 28 October 2022.

Under the slogan "Communicating Climate Action", EuroPCom will be the occasion to hear the EU's political messaging ahead of the COP27 (Sharm el-Sheikh, 6-18 November 2022) and to discuss communication techniques and methods on how to engage citizens in taking climate action.

There are two fully digital sessions on the programme:

- 1) first a panel debate featuring experts in climate summits giving us a global perspective at what is at stake at COP27 and providing information to climate communicators about the EU's political messaging,
- 2) secondly a session presenting practical examples on successful communication approaches and techniques to boost citizens, business or public authorities' engagement in delivering climate action.

For more details please check the programme and speakers section on EuroPCom 2022 website and don't forget to register!
